DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments, see page 10-11, filed 6/18/2007, with respect to the rejection(s) of claim(s) 1-5 under 102(b) and 102 (e) have been fully considered and are persuasive. Therefore, the rejection has been withdrawn. However, upon further consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection is made in view of Rabenau et al. (3,561,101) and Miyazaki et al. (4,331,286).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rabenau et al. (3,561,101) in view of Miyazaki et al. (4,331,286).

Regarding claims 1-5, Rabenau et al. states a method of bonding bearing alloys. Rabenau et al. shows an embodiment with three sheets of metal: Steel 1, bearing alloy 5, and a bearing alloy (an aluminum alloy) 3 with coatings of pure aluminum 2,4 (figure 4 and column 2 line 62 to column 3 line 11). Rabenau et al. states that the aluminum alloy can consist of an Al-Mn, Al-Mg and Al-Mg-Si alloy (column 2 lines 20-23). The layers are joined by a combination of heat and pressure (column 3 lines 28-36).

Rabenau et al. does not state that the heat is brought to a phase transition temperature and below the melting point. However, Miyazaki et al. does state pressure bonding two dissimilar metal members by heating the contacting surfaces under pressure to a temperature below the melting temperature, but to the eutectic temperature to form a pressure bond (column 1 line 62- column 2 lines 21). As stated by Miyazaki et al., it would have been obvious at the time of the invention to heat below the melting temperature but above the eutectic so a eutectic reaction could take place. If heated above the melting temperature than fusion bonding would occur instead of pressure bonding (column 2 lines 30-36). Miyazaki et al. also states to allow the material to cool after pressure bonding (column 3 lines 35-40). It would have been obvious at the time of the invention to allow the material to cool after pressure bonding to solidify the material to form the laminate structure.
